There are multiple ways available that can help you save on the Lufthansa flight cancellation charges. Some of those methods have been listed below:

- Cancel within 24 Hours of the Booking

The best way to avoid cancellation charges is – to do it within 24 hours of the booking. However, the journey must be at least 7 days away from the original booking time.

According to the 24 hours free Lufthansa flight cancellation policy, you can reverse it without paying any penalty, irrespective of the cabin class, destination, and ticket type you have chosen. So, if you want to cancel tickets, then it is good to do it within 24 hours of the actual booking time.

- Buy Refundable Tickets

Many people avoid buying refundable tickets because they cost a bit more than the normal ones. But you should also remember one thing – predicting emergencies or unavoidable situations is very tough.

Since you cannot anticipate such incidents, it is good to cover your back all the time. For this, you must book refundable tickets with Lufthansa Airlines. Yes, they will put a little extra pressure on your pockets but they will remove the revocation charges and hassles involved.

- Always Book a One-Way Ticket

When you are 200% sure about the trip, it is fine. But if you have even the slightest doubt about things, it is suggested to book only a one-way trip.

We are saying this because whenever you come across some issues, you will need to book the complete trip (round trip booking). This will cost you even more. Since there is no provision for canceling only a one-way ticket when you have the round-trip, it is good to act smart and book it separately.

- Opt for Frequent Flyer Programs

Some air operators such as Lufthansa Airlines provide special advantages to the passengers who have a membership in its frequent flyer program.

Along with priority check-ins, boarding, special services, and so on, you may also have benefits while canceling the flights. But these benefits are not guaranteed. Hence, it is suggested to go through the terms and conditions before anything.

- Travel Insurance can Come to Rescue You

Investing in travel insurance can be the finest way to claim refunds on your canceled flight bookings. Criteria and rules will vary from one policy to another. So, you can choose the one that covers cancellation fees.
