

The Most In-Demand Private Staff Jobs in 2026

The demand for experienced private household professionals continues to grow. Families, estates, and family offices need trusted staff who can provide high standards of service, discretion, and professionalism. For people searching for private staff jobs, 2026 offers opportunities across several areas of private service.

Popular Private Staff Jobs in 2026

Housekeepers

Housekeepers remain an important part of private household teams. Their work can include cleaning, laundry, wardrobe care, guest preparation, and maintaining the home to a high standard.

Private Chefs

Private Chefs prepare meals according to the family's preferences and dietary needs. Menu planning, shopping, entertaining, and kitchen management may also be part of the role.

Estate and House Managers

These professionals oversee the smooth running of a property. Their duties can include managing staff, arranging maintenance, coordinating suppliers, and handling household schedules.

Chauffeurs and Personal Assistants

Private chauffeurs support families with daily travel, while personal assistants manage appointments, travel arrangements, correspondence, and personal tasks.

Nannies and Childcare Professionals

Experienced nannies, governesses, and tutors continue to be valuable to families who need professional childcare and educational support.

What Employers Look For

Experience is important, but private employers also value discretion, flexibility, communication, reliability, and strong references. Candidates who can work independently and adapt to changing household requirements can have an advantage.

How a Housekeeper Agency Can Help

Finding the right private position can be difficult because many household vacancies are handled confidentially. A specialist Housekeeper Agency can match candidates with suitable employers based on experience, skills, location, and availability.

Melissa PS recruits experienced professionals for private households, estates, and family offices internationally, including housekeepers, chefs, estate managers, chauffeurs, nannies, and personal assistants.

Melissa PS Insight

Private household careers can offer rewarding, long-term opportunities for professionals who combine relevant experience with discretion, adaptability and a strong understanding of private service.

Whether progressing within housekeeping, childcare, estate management or another area of private staffing, the right opportunity should reflect not only a candidate's skills, but also their long-term ambitions and the environment in which they are most likely to succeed. A specialist recruitment consultancy can help experienced professionals identify roles that offer the right fit on both sides.